

You're not just learning special skills. You're creating special moments.

Commercial NPD Manager – Fresh Dairy Products

At Arla, we do so much more than make some of the world's favourite dairy products. We make healthy taste delicious, mornings worth getting up for and family dinners unforgettable. Arla®, Castello® and Lurpak® – brands like these make us a vital, natural part of modern life in over 100 countries around the world.

In Arla Foods Denmark's Commercial Innovation team we identify new opportunities and turn them into big business. In 2014, we added more than 120m DKK in net incremental revenue to the Danish business and are set to increase this in 2015. And over the last years we have added a host of new fresh dairy products including a skyr range, cottage cheese range, yogurt range and other milk and cooking products to enhance the lives of Danish households. Your new work place is in Aarhus.

Create the future of dairy in Denmark

As Commercial NPD Manager your main objective is to develop new and improve present products within the fresh dairy product portfolio. You will work in a high-performing team environment. And you will identify potential white spots in the market and collaborate with our key internal and external stakeholders to innovate the business.

Your main task will be to develop recipes for launch in cooperation with project leaders, consumer insight managers, marketing and dairy colleagues and other specialists. You are responsible for driving the development process from pilot plant scale to the final handover to production. Expect 15-20 travel days a year as you cooperate closely with local production sites across Denmark.

Product development experience and a Food Science degree

You hold a degree within Dairy or Food Science and Technology or similar. So far, your career path has provided you with sound experience in product development within the food industry. As you will work towards the markets, you must possess a global mindset and a solid business sense. You have a technological knowledge about production of fresh dairy products as for example UHT and fermented products.

At a personal level, you are outgoing and comfortable cooperating with colleagues from different backgrounds and cultures. Equally important, you possess great communication and interpersonal skills, and you thrive on using your curiosity as a professional tool to develop innovative and value-added products. The position requires that you speak Danish and get by in English.

Help improve the everyday life of millions

To us, it's not just about making dairy products. It's about providing the ingredients vital to everyday life. Please apply via this LINK no later than 31 July. For additional information, please call Carsten A. Hansen at +45 8746 6647. Please state in your application where you have seen the advertisement.

