About Arla – who are we?

Arla Foods is a global dairy cooperative, owned by farmers in 7 European countries (UK, DK, SE, DE, NL, LUX, BE), supplying milk and dairy products to customers and consumers around the world. More than 16,000 suppliers deliver to our multiple processing sites and offices across the world, where Arla employs approximately 20,900 colleagues. This briefly illustrates the extent and complexity of our business. For further details about Arla click here:

We operate and sell our products globally. We not only provide food products but also a culture that upholds internationally recognised human rights. This means that wherever we operate, we represent Arla's firm belief that the human rights of all people must be respected.

We follow the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises as well as the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights.

Arla Foods in the UK

Arla Foods Limited, which has its head office in Leeds, UK, is a UK subsidiary of Arla Foods amba, which has its head office in Aarhus, Denmark. It produces and supplies dairy products across the UK and globally, employing circa 3,700 colleagues across 13 sites. The global annual revenues for Arla Foods amba and Arla Foods Limited are EUR 13,8 billion, and EUR 3 billion respectively.

Arla Foods Cheese Company Limited holds the maturing bulk cheddar cheese stocks in the UK after they have been produced by Arla Foods Limited. Arla Foods Cheese Company Limited does not employ any colleagues in its business or procure or sell any goods or services, other than from/to Arla Foods Limited.

Yeo Valley Dairies Limited is the licensee of certain rights used within Arla Foods Limited's wider UK business and does not employ any colleagues in its business.

Our commitment

We are committed to contributing to social, environmental and economically sustainable development. Arla's Code of Conduct 'Our Responsibility' is our foundation: it covers the 10 principles of the UN Global Compact and the UN initiative to promote ethical business practices. Together with Arla Foods Human Rights Policy (link) and other related policies, it guides our behavior and is integral to every business decision made across our company.

We continue to embed our commitment to respect human rights in all business areas and processes, and continue to work on implementing human rights due diligence processes, and working with human rights impact assessments.

We do not accept forced labour and human trafficking and are committed to acting with integrity and ethically in our corporate activities and supply chain. We specify our expectations to suppliers in our Code of Conduct for Suppliers and Business Partners (link). As a farmer-owned cooperative we also recognise that we need to ensure human rights are respected on our owners' farms, and we work with farmer engagement and raising awareness.

Our principles for tackling modern slavery both in the UK and globally include:

In the UK, we only use specified, reputable suppliers to source labour as this is helping to reduce our exposure. Continuous registration checks are undertaken in line with the Gangmasters' Licensing Authority (GLAA) wherever applicable to verify the practices of any new agency before engaging with them.

All our Arla processing and production sites delivering to the UK market are registered with SEDEX, an ethical supply chain database, which is updated annually. Our sites are audited against ethical and human rights standards on a risk-based frequency, usually in the form of SEDEX Member Ethical Trade Audit (SMETA). The SMETA is based on the Ethical Trading Initiative \(ETI\) Base Code and local UK laws.

It is important to us that we continuously identify risks and areas for improvement and implement follow-up actions. We have a global modern slavery steering committee to formalise internal governance on modern slavery risks. We are committed to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure forced labour and human trafficking does not take place in our supply chains.

Further the principles include:

- Robust internal data checking processes in the UK. This includes checking of employee bank details and addresses to identify risk areas.
- Our General Membership Terms include our commitment to work against Modern Slavery including forced labour.

- Arla's farm quality assurance programme Arlagården®, which is compulsory for all members, aims to achieve a high level of compliance through quarterly self-assessments. Arlagården® standards include a strong emphasis on the 'people' element on-farm including working environment, health and safety, accommodation and rest facilities.
- The 'people' standards in Arlagården® are assessed on-farm by third party auditors in all start-up and re-opening audits.
- Migrant worker colleagues in the Middle East retain their passports and identity documents, unless they sign a letter of consent if they want Arla to safekeep these.
- Upskilling of our leaders and colleagues about modern slavery.
- As a selection criteria our Procurement department asks new preferred suppliers to provide a link to their Modern Slavery Statement.
- We work with responsible purchasing practices and continuously review our suppliers.
- Our confidential whistleblower service is open for all.

Our expectations

We are committed to respecting human rights and preventing forced labour and human trafficking, and acknowledge and embrace our responsibility in all our operations. We expect the same from business relationships (incl. joint ventures, suppliers and contractors) and our employees.

If any of our employees or anyone who has a business relationship with Arla identifies potential cases of forced labour and/or human trafficking within our business or supply chain, we expect them to inform Arla immediately, so we can take action, and we have established procedures in place for reporting such concerns.

Responsible sourcing

As a leading global dairy company, we source goods and services around the world. Since 2000, Arla's procurement has been centralised to ensure common standards and practices, enabling us to take environmental, social and human rights responsibilities into consideration when selecting a supplier. All suppliers sourced by our procurement department are required, as part of their contractual agreement with us, to comply with our Code of Conduct for Suppliers and Business Partners.

This requires our suppliers to e.g.:

- Provide a safe and healthy working environment;
- Respect the rights of children and not engage in or tolerate the use of child labour;
- Not use forced labour and at a minimum comply with applicable laws and industry standards relating to working hours and minimum wages;
- Respect international agreements on human rights

Due diligence and audit of our supply chain

Arla has a global approach to supplier assurance and our preferred suppliers of key categories (ingredients, packaging, contract manufacturing, and selected services such as facility management) are required to complete a detailed supplier questionnaire covering quality, food safety and human rights standards, among other areas of importance. We have processes in place for audit and assessment of our preferred suppliers and take a risk-based approach to auditing of suppliers using location, sourcing category, and historical performance as some of the selection criteria. Should we identify or become aware of any business relationships not adequately managing their potential or actual modern slavery risk, we follow up and act accordingly.

Progress since the previous statement

The 'Right not to be subjected to slavery, servitude or forced labour (incl. child labour)' is identified as one of Arla's salient human rights. During the year we have continued our general human rights work including annual reporting on this topic.

- We continue to follow-up on purchasing compliance and reach out to those colleagues who are most non-compliant to support them in changing habits and behaviour and make them aware of the benefits brought by compliance with purchasing policies
- We invite all new hires to a session where we explain what purchasing compliance is, why it is important and how to buy and order the Arla way
- We finalised the pilot project on 3 markets mapping living wages in Arla
- We have updated our Code of Conduct for Suppliers and Business Partners including more focus on labour and human rights
- We have conducted human rights spot checks in the Middle East, focusing i.a. on the risk of passport withholding and recruitment fees
- We have developed a working hour policy statement for all people working at Arla sites

Next steps to prevent modern slavery in our business and supply chain

We continually review our efforts in this area; we recognise that this is a complex area that requires continuous improvement to ensure we mitigate the risk of modern slavery in our business. During 2023 and 2024 we will be taking the following steps to improve our approach to mitigating the risk of modern slavery in our business and supply chain:

- Training of key people in HR and Supply Chain in the UK (Stronger Together)
- Continue with general awareness raising in Arla for all colleagues
- Engage in collaboration with our UK works council
- Continue to strengthen our engagement with farmer owners, raising awareness through dialogues farmer representatives.
- Training and calibration of Arlagarden auditors
- Strengthening the overall human rights management set-up including focus on modern slavery, and continuing the work of implementing human rights due diligence processes.
- Implementing our revised Code of Conduct for Suppliers and Business Partners in new and existing supplier contracts
- Continue the living wage mapping on Arla sites
- The Global Steering Group will continuously work to embed best practice across all countries where Arla carries out business
- Continuing the work to create awareness of correct purchasing behaviour and adapting our internal ways of working to allow for increased purchasing compliance to minimize the risks of modern slavery

Grievance mechanisms

Arla values and respects honest and open communication, and all employees and other stakeholders have the opportunity to raise questions and/or concerns through our confidential Whistleblower Service – ‘Ethics Line’ at arla.whistleblowernetwork.net.

Reporting

We will track and communicate progress in our Annual Reporting.
